This year's Oscars promises very special musical performances across genres and generations. Check back regularly for the latest additions.

Barbra Streisand

Barbra Streisand, the award winning actress, producer and singer, will be performing at the Oscars for the first time since the 49th Academy Awards, 36 years ago. Streisand has won two Academy Awards, Best Original Song in 1977 and Best Actress in 1968.

Adele

British pop sensation Adele will also be performing her Oscar nominated song "Skyfall", in her first American television performance since last year's Grammys. The event also marks the first time Adele will be performing the song in front of a live audience.
